

Cloak & Candle

Brand guidelines — the name, the mark, the colours, the type and the voice of a dinner-party game of loyalty and lies.

Candlelit. Theatrical. Mischievous.

Cloak & Candle is a hosted party game for one room and one evening. Its world is a long table, a candle burning for every guest, and a cloak that somebody at the table is wearing. Each night a candle goes out; each day the Faithful try to pull the cloak away. Everything we make should feel like that room: warm, dim, a little dangerous, and very well dressed.

CANDLELIT

Dark grounds, warm light. We glow; we never glare. Rose-gold is the candle flame of the brand. The cloak is the dark around it.

THEATRICAL

Every screen is a scene. Big type, slow reveals, a pause before the name. The host is a narrator, not a quizmaster.

MISCHIEVOUS

We enjoy the lie. We wink at the guilty and tease the innocent — never mean, never crude.

PREMIUM

One idea per screen, generous space, careful words. It should feel like the good napkins came out.

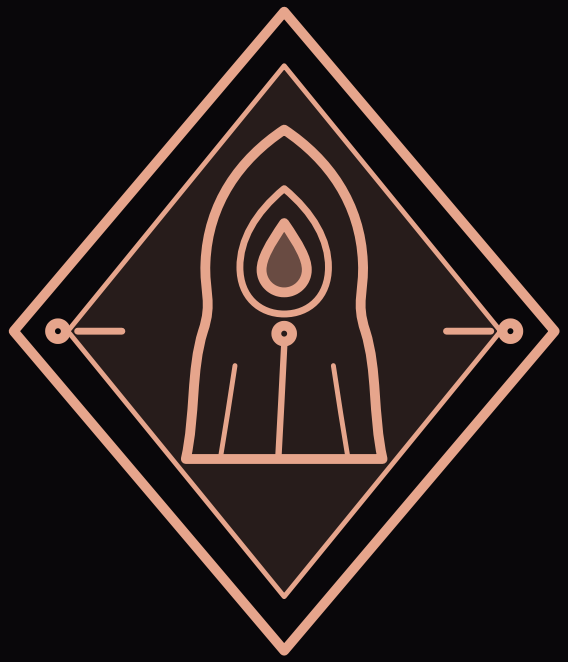

WHAT WE ARE

- Our own world. An original game with its own look, sound and words.
- For hosts. The host is the hero: we make them look effortless.
- For one room. Faces, blindfolds, chalk — the TV is the stage, not the game.

WHAT WE ARE NOT

- Not a TV tie-in. We never name, quote, imitate or allude to a television programme, its presenters, its castle, its music or its logo.
- Not horror. No gore, no jump-scares. A drop of wine-red, not blood spatter.
- Not a gadget. No apps to install, no accounts, no guests on their phones.

The one in the cloak

A cloaked figure stands inside a lozenge, and where its face should be there is only a candle flame. It is the whole game in one picture: someone at the table is hiding under the cloak, and the candle is what gives them away.

ANATOMY

- The lozenge — a double diamond frame, the outer line at full weight, the inner at half. It sets the mark apart from shields and crests.
- The cloak — a pointed hood falling to a straight hem, with two folds and a clasp at the throat. Never add hands, feet or a face.
- The flame — a filled teardrop inside the hood's opening. It is the only solid shape in the mark.
- The pins — two short rails and studs at the side points, like a brooch or a seal.

THE WORDMARK

"Cloak & Candle" set in Grenze Gotisch SemiBold (600) and converted to outlines. The ampersand is part of the name. Always use the supplied artwork; never retype it.

Three ways to sign

Horizontal — the default: web headers, the TV top bar, email, merchandise.

Stacked — covers, posters, packaging, social squares, the TV title card.

Mark alone — app icons, favicons, stickers, wax seals; only where "Cloak & Candle" is already said.

COLOURWAYS

Rose-gold on Ink or Plum. The hero.

Ivory on Velvet, photography or busy dark grounds.

Ink on Parchment and any light ground.

Ink on Copper. Single-colour print uses Black or White.

Give it room to breathe

CLEAR SPACE

Keep a margin of at least X on every side, where X is the height of the flame — about one sixth of the mark's height. Nothing — type, edges, other logos — enters it.

MINIMUM SIZES

- Mark: 8 mm / 24 px tall. Smaller than that, the fine inner line fills in.
- Horizontal lockup: 30 mm / 120 px wide.
- Stacked lockup: 22 mm / 90 px wide.

FILES

Every lockup and colourway is supplied as SVG (outlined, no fonts needed) and as transparent PNG at 2400 px in media-pack/logos.

NEVER

Stretch or squash.

Turn it gold, or any other colour.

Add shadows, bevels or outlines.

Set it on a clashing or busy ground.

Rotate it.

Retype it, swap the ampersand for "and", or pair it with a show's name or logo.

Plum ink and rose-gold

Dark, warm plum grounds carry almost everything. Rose-gold is our light: titles, key lines, the one button that matters. Wine-red is kept for the moment someone dies or a Traitor is revealed. Verdigris and Night Steel are working colours for the host's phone (safe, private) and never lead.

The rose-gold gradient runs Blush #F4C9B7 → Rose-gold #E6A58C → Copper #AE6249 → Deep copper #763C29, top to bottom, at a slight angle. Use it for display type and the hero logo only. CMYK values are starting points: proof on the stock before a print run.

RULES

- One display line per screen. Grenze Gotisch is for headlines and names — never a paragraph, never all caps.
- Blackletter needs space. At least 1.5× its cap height above and below; minimum 18 pt in print, 32 px on screen.
- Italic tells the story. IM Fell Italic is the narrator: short, spoken lines.
- Caps are always tracked. Alegreya Sans SC, +200 to +400.
- On the host phone use the device's system font for speed and legibility; the brand lives on the TV.

Candles, cloaks and seals

ICONOGRAPHY

Line icons on a 64-unit grid, 2.4 stroke, round caps and joins, one solid detail at most. Shield, dagger, chalice, moon, eye, ghost, candle, hourglass: the objects of the evening.

MOTIFS

- Wax seals stand for people: one colour each, initial pressed in blackletter. A Traitor's seal cracks.
- Candles are the guests: one each, lit as they sit down. A snuffed candle is a death — the only place we show one.
- The cloak is the Traitors': never drawn as a person with a face — a hood, a fold, a shadow at the edge of the light.
- Lancet windows frame the TV; their glass changes with the hour (dawn rose, day amber, night steel).
- Mist and dust — slow and low. Nothing flashes except a reveal.

All artwork is original, drawn in code. Use real game screens rather than mock-ups wherever the product is shown.

The narrator at the head of the table

We speak like a host who has been waiting all evening to say this: second person, present tense, a little wicked, never wordy. Short sentences. A pause before the name.

SOUNDS LIKE US

> "Blindfolds on. Hands flat on the table. If I hear a single word, you will answer for it at breakfast."

> "If you feel my hand on your shoulder, you take the cloak."

> "Look at the screen: there is a candle burning for every one of you."

> "Every cloak has been pulled away. The Faithful have won."

DO

- Address the room directly: you, your table, tonight.
- Use British English and plain words: chalk a name, not submit a vote.
- Keep secrets in the copy too — never hint who holds a role.
- Call the prize the prize until it is won.

DON'T

- Name, quote or allude to any TV programme, presenter, catchphrase, castle or theme tune.
- Write gore or cruelty. Murder is a tap on the shoulder, not a crime scene.
- Use tech words in front of guests: app, sync, user, click.
- Pile on adjectives. One good word, then stop.

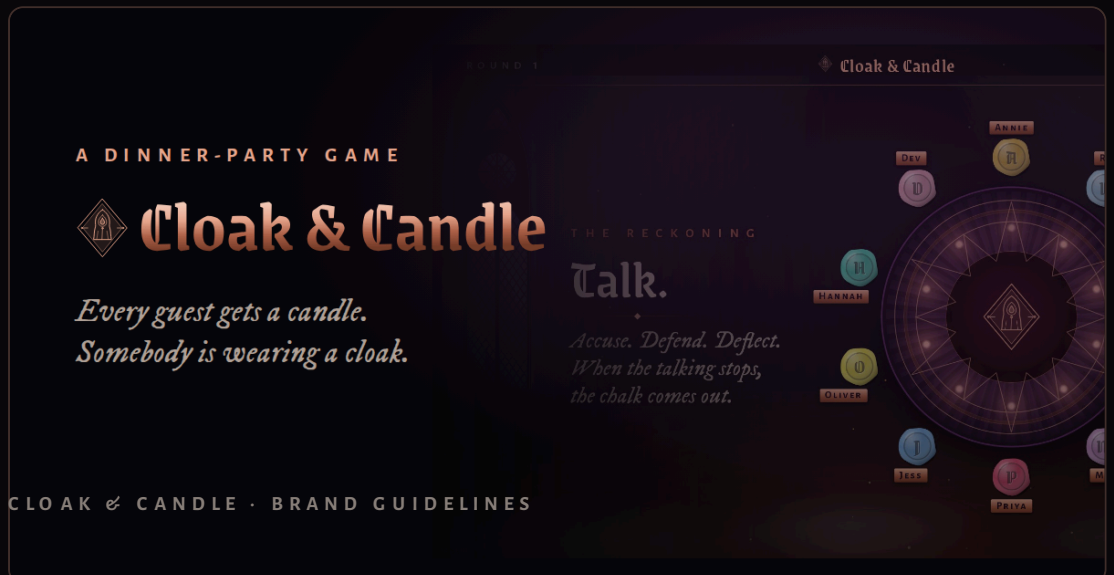

NAMING

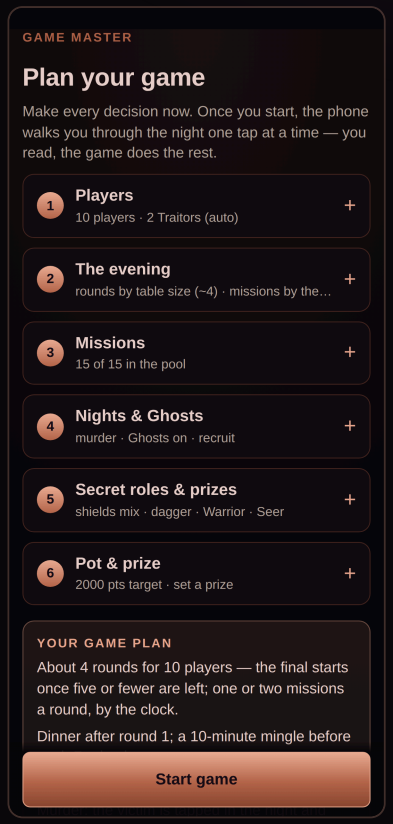

Game words are capitalised: Traitor, Faithful, Ghost, the Reckoning, the Warrior, the Seer, the Dilemma. Everything else is lower case: shield, dagger, pot, mission, night, breakfast.

How it comes together

The TV title card: stacked lockup, rose-gold on the candlelit set.

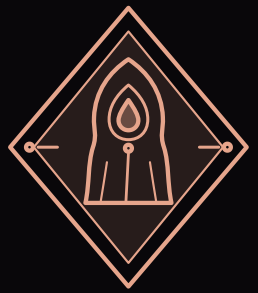

The host plans the whole game on one screen.

Social square (1080×1080).
